

The Social Studies Department of the Toms River Regional Schools has been busy throughout the school year delivering a high-quality education to students during difficult times. Our educators continuously work to make connections with students, utilizing different methods and technology to enhance the educational experience, whether students are virtual or in-person.

Our high school students continue to focus on a myriad of different topics with Social Studies. Whether it be a more in-depth focus on American History, a culturally responsive World Affairs class, or self-reflecting Human Growth and Socialization class; students are encouraged to interact with each other as they begin to formulate their own opinions and understandings of the world around them. Ms. General's Political and Legal Education class at High School North is just one example of students taking action and making a difference in the community. Having focused on Covid-19 and its impact on student populations, they jointly created a proposal to assist students, and submitted it to the NJ State Assembly for consideration. These students, along with Ms. General, are looking to create a more positive environment for all involved!

As the year moves on, the Social Studies Department looks to continue its interactive and meaningful approach to educating students, while also striving for academic success and increased student understanding of the world around them.
